

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A flow sensor in which all bridge resistor elements of a bridge circuit are arranged on a chip together with a heating resistor element, so that the drift of the bridge resistor elements will then have only a very slight effect on the output signal of the bridge circuit, which may be picked off at the electrical connections.